Physical Description:

This collection of newspaper articles concerning events, people, organizations, etc. in York County and Maine, particularly in the Kennebunks, was given to the donor by Ardelle Maling, the compiler.

Maling lived most of her life in Cape Porpoise. For many years she was an assistant to the post mistress, Florence Nunan. As a native of the area, she was interested in local events and history. Her appetite for arrangement and scrapbook making and her historian's instincts led her to compile this material.

The collection will be a useful research tool because articles pertaining to particular organizations or subjects are pulled together in one place and because they represent a fairly complete selection of newspaper articles from the 1950s – 1970s.

Acq. #86.22. Stored in eight half boxes.
