MUSEUM HOLDS STORY TIME IN DOLLHOUSE EXHIBITION

KENNEBUNK, MAINE – With the Brick Store Museum’s ongoing Living Little miniatures exhibition as the backdrop, the museum is catering to its youngest guests with “Living Little: Story Time.” At each of three different sessions offered on Wednesdays, December 3, 10 and 17 at 10AM, children can gather in the museum’s galleries to listen to two charming storybooks, each with a dollhouse or museum theme.

Afterwards, toddlers will have a chance to explore the dollhouses, many of which will be newly decorated for the holidays, and to play “I Spy” in the exhibition. Some of the books featured will also be available for purchase, and young readers can take home dollhouse-themed booklists specially prepared by Kennebunk Free Library staff. Free and fun for parents and tots, the story times serve as great introductions to the museum. Adult supervision is required. “Living Little: Story Time” is made possible by a grant from the Virginia Hodgkins Somers Foundation. The exhibition itself remains on view through December 2008 and is sponsored by The Brick Store Museum’s proud business partners, Jeffrey A. Bonney, CFP[®], The Captain Lord Mansion, and Ocean Bank.
